4TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

Theme: Sustainability Through Technology

About ISIC

The International Society for Intelligent Construction (ISIC) serves as a knowledge center for intelligent construction technologies (ICTs), aiding public agencies, contractors, consultants, academia, and other relevant industries.

ISIC creates a space for sharing knowledge about ICTs for infrastructure, including how to gather, analyze, and utilize information effectively. These ICTs are a blend of current scientific knowledge and advanced construction practices. At its core, ISIC's goal is to encourage the use of ICTs throughout the entirety of an infrastructure's life cycle, from the initial survey and design phase to construction, operation, and maintenance. This approach is designed to help adapt to changing environments and minimize risks, with the ultimate goals of improving construction quality, saving costs, and enhancing safety.

The scope of ISIC extends across all existing and emerging ICTs relevant to the infrastructure life cycle, which incorporates aspects like intelligent sensing, data analysis, decision-making, and execution.
